

FARMER CO-OPS PROVIDING FOR

WISCONSIN

Farmer co-ops in Wisconsin and around the country give individual farmers the opportunity to truly participate in the agricultural and food system, all the way from farm to retail.

Farmer co-ops are taxed differently than other types of companies. Section 199A was passed to put co-ops and small businesses on even footing with big corporations. It has been a success and was critical in seeing farmer co-ops and their members thrive through a pandemic, unrest around the globe, and the highest inflation in a generation. Congress should stand up for agriculture and extend this important tax provision.

STATE SUCCESS STORIES

“From the perspective of a large dairy cooperative, I know our member dairy farm families really appreciate the support the Section 199A benefit provides. In mid-March we met with members, and part of our financial results review was to inform them that their cooperative is passing through 100% of the 199A benefit directly to members. The benefit is worth over $35 million dollars, and to them was equivalent to 58c/cwt for every cwt of milk they shipped to our co-op. In a year that saw milk prices decline by over $4/cwt, this is very meaningful to those families. Losing this benefit at a time when dairies, especially the smaller dairies, are under extreme financial pressures would be a significant penalty and likely accelerate consolidation of milk supply. I hope many of our members will post comments and have their voices heard as well. My point, as CEO, is simple - we pass this benefit through to our dairy farm families. They need it.”

“In Wisconsin, Gottschalk Cranberry, Inc. has used the Section 199A deduction to make smart, forward-looking investments in our farm operations by purchasing new equipment and vehicles, and renovating our cranberry beds to grow different varieties of cranberries that bring a stronger yield. Having the flexibility for capital purchases, we are able to improve the long-term viability of our third-generation family-owned farm.”
